Dear Johnny,

I hope this will be of help to you. The pictures I scanned, but don't know how to improve the quality yet. Maybe next time I can do a better job.

Good luck with your class. I found part of my Mother's family on the internet and it was strictly beginners luck. I had information on the very earliest ancestors and the most recent generation, but couldn't connect them. By sheer luck I was able to connect the two batches of information. In September my daughter and I went back to England, Scotland, and Wales with 38 cousins we'd never met, and visited the area here our one common ancestor was born. The Anglican church where he was baptized in 1625 is still an active church, so we attended the Sunday Service and took communion with the current members! Awesome experience!

I wish we could get a family trip like that together for the Boring's (before I get too much older), but I'm afraid we'd have a language problem.

Best Wishes,

Shirley
